

One Team

In a sense, “siloed structures” may be an organized system that enables efficiency and the pursuit of expertise. However, it is clear that they struggle to adapt in an era of rapid change and discontinuity. In today's world, innovation that transcends boundaries and gathers diverse wisdom is indispensable. However, in a process where diverse wisdom intersects, conflict and deadlocks are inevitable. A team that shares a clear goal can embrace and overcome these challenges, transforming them into tremendous energy. One team. The combination of disparate elements is what makes it interesting. We will harness our collective strength to weather the storm of this major change, break free from the mature phase, and challenge ourselves to achieve renewed growth through the creation of new value.